

A very tall variety with good winter hardiness.

A very high yielding variety with good winter hardiness and excellent feeding quality with fresh yields 15% higher than Caledonian kale and 10% higher than Bittern in German trials.

Grüner Angeliter has been the mainstay forage variety of kale in New Zealand for many years and since its introduction to the UK has become equally popular over here. It's high yields makes it ideal for utilisation by dairy, beef cattle and winter feed for sheep.
